EDITORIAL

In Year's to come, local chess players may well look back upon this Memorial Day and recall that the first BIG TIME chess tournament was held in the Pacific Northwest. True, no masters competed, but a number of players did who are definitely in the EXPERT class. Chess players can only be judged by their game scores, and from the games I have seen, these are certainly the games of chess experts, if not near-masters. Go over some of the games in this, and the next issue. I defy you to disagree.

The winner, Jim Schmitt, is certainly a potential master---he has all the natural ability required, and the self-confidence to reach the top. He is a strong Postal player, and has already earned a high Class A rating in Chess Review. Unfortunately for us, he is a Portland player, but we shall certainly see more of him. Only 19 years old, he has a great deal of time ahead to reach far greater heights, and with Arthur Dake as an incentive, will probably do it.

Carroll Crain has long ago proved himself to be one of the best players in the state, and in this tournament substantiated it. I daresay he will give the present State Champion a terrific battle for top honors if he competes in the next tournament.

Vernon Holmes could easily be classed as an Expert from his showing in this tournament, from his games, and past record in Tacoma tournaments.

Charles Joachim has now won the Seattle City title twice, once with Sheets competing, and placed second in the State. Not only that, but his win of the European Amateur title in 1937 very nearly gave him a master's title!

V. V. Bever's record in the last season of Puget Sound play is really remarkable, and coupled with his win of the Seattle Chess Club championship, should certainly give him consideration for the title of Expert!

Let's create a title of Chess EXPERT, and give it to Sheets, Schmitt, Crain, and Joachim now. Let's also add the names of Bever, Holmes and Tweeddale upon their next good showings in any statewide or sectional tournament.

Will you write me your opinions on this?

JIM SCHMITT WINS PUGET SOUND OPEN

Jim Schmitt, 19 year old Portland Junior, walked away with top honors in the first Puget Sound Open tournament, and also with the $15.00 cash prize. Winning all of his games, there remains little doubt that the best man won, and he will certainly be a credit to the Portland Chess Club, and to Pacific Northwest Chess.

Carroll Crain of Tacoma finished a strong second, losing only to the winner in an all important first round match. This gives added proof of his reputation as one of the best players in the state. His score includes wins over Holmes, Joachim, and Bever, so this is quite conclusive evidence.

The Tacoma champion, Vernon Holmes, placed third, losing only to Schmitt and Crain. Tacoma's prestige is raised considerably by the fine scores of their two star players. His first round win over Joachim was one of the highlights of the tournament.

Seattle City champion, Charles Joachim, finished fourth. One of the pre-tourney favorites, he was practically eliminated from first place consideration in the first two rounds by his loss to Holmes on an unsound sacrifice, and his well-played draw with Bever, and his later loss to Crain completed it. But his game scores still show his strength.

Fifth place resulted in a three way tie between V. W. Bever, Seattle Chess Club Champion, Bert Brandstrom, Skagit County Champion, and Henry Amsden, Bellingham expert who learned his chess in Vienna. The ties were broken by the Sonnenborn-Berger System, resulting in the above mentioned order. Brandstrom placed ahead of Amsden by winning their individual game.

Collins was the early round sensation of the tourney, ranking second at the end of three rounds, but had to face Schmitt, Joachim and Crain in the final sessions. He finished eighth.

The tournament, as a whole, was even more successful by playing it as a six-round Swiss instead of the required four. This gave the completed results almost as accurately as a round robin tournament would have, although this makes it quite difficult for the Tournament Director to keep opponents from meeting each other twice. Ray Hiscox did a remarkable job in directing a most difficult, and most successful tournament.

ANNUAL MEETING

Meeting held at the Carlton Hotel, Tacoma, May 30th.

Representatives present were Leslie Coubrough, Tacoma; V. W. Bever, Queen Anne; Bert Brandstrom, Skagit; Charles Joachim, Seattle, R. P. Allen, YMCA; and L. W. Taro, Everett with vote as Directors. Jim Schmitt, Portland; Henry Amsden, Bellingham, and Peter Husby, Everett were present and given voice but not vote.

Edward L. Arnold gave R. P. Allen proxy, and sent word by him of his resignation as President, and his unavailability for further office. Allen turned the proxy vote over to Charles Joachim.

Chess International Committee meeting voted to be held in Everett, Sunday, June 27th.

Chess International voted to be held in Everett at a later date with the approval of the B. C. Chess Federation.

Chess International committee selected by vote were R. C. Cannon, L. W. Taro, Ray LaFever, Peter Husby, R. P. Allen, W. H. Raleigh.

New Washington Chess Federation President voted authority to appoint additional members of this committee.

John Nourse, Normand Nippell, Harold Seely, and Henry Amsden appointed as additional members of the Chess International Committee, and given power to replace themselves if unable to attend.

Committee voted full power to represent the Washington Chess Federation in arranging the match.

Peter Husby selected as the Corresponding Secretary for the committee.

Washington State tournament voted to be held in Seattle next fall, R. P. Allen voted as the Tournament Director. Round robin tournament voted with not more than eleven invited.

Bellingham Chess Club voted an invitation to join the Federation.

Voted to elect a full parcel of officers to the Federation consisting of President, Vice-president, Secretary, and Treasurer, and to have a Board of Directors appointed, one from each club, each with a vote.

Clubs invited to send a second representative to Federation meetings with voice but without vote.

Federation officers recommended to represent their clubs as Directors.

New Officers elected:

President	- Lawrence Taro
Vice-president	- John Nourse
Secretary	- Richard Allen
Treasurer	- W. H. Raleigh

Retiring Officers

President	- Edward Arnold
Sec.-Treas.	- Lawrence Taro

RADIO MATCH

The Portland Chess Club - Kitsap Chess Club radio match has been set for June 11th.

BELLINGHAM CHESS CLUB

The Bellingham Chess Club has been meeting each Thursday night at the local YMCA during the past winter. Attendance has been between 20 and 25. Matches have been held with the Linden and Skagit clubs.

The club has been invited to join the Washington Chess Federation, and to compete in the Puget Sound League.

9. YMCA	1½	6½

Tacoma wins again! Proving beyond reasonable doubt fo their ability to play the best team chess in the area, Tacoma again became Puget Sound League champions.

Not only as a team do they rate high, but individually, not one of the players who competed for them during the last season finished with a minus score!

HAIL THE CHAMPIONS.

*Although not playing 6 games, Dahlquist won another 6 points by forfeit! The Editor feels his name should be included on these grounds.

FUNDAMENTAL
CHESS STRATEGY and TACTICS

by Richard P. Allen

Part I

SYNOPSIS OF CHESS FUNDAMENTALS

Chess theory is based on five elementary principles;

1. FORCE
2. TIME
3. DISTANCE
4. SAFETY
5. EFFICIENCY (Power Factor)

The chessmen symbolize several types of forces. A chessman is powerful in relation to the number of squares (distance) it can command in a given move (time). The chess master constructs a chess pattern move by move with the same regard for efficiency and safety that the engineer uses in designing a bridge.

Since the antagonists in a chess match start out with the same potential force, time distance, and safety factors, the player who coordinates these factors with greatest efficiency will be victorious. Any short-sighted disregard of the interaction of these tactical elements predisposes further loss of control, leading to eventual defeat.

An exact evaluation of the pieces can not be stated because power varies with the efficiency of employment, but a close approximation for their relative value may be made at any given time by noting the amount of work each one can do at the present or future probable position.

Work can be measured in terms of (1) distance through which the force acts (number of squares the piece commands), (2) stability or security of the piece as projected into the probable future positions (time lost in retreat or reenforcing may seriously reduce all other factors), and (3) the degree to which the piece mutually supports its teammates.

For example, a knight rates higher in the center than in the corner, higher when attacking a non-knight than a knight, and higher when mutually supporting another knight. In the same way, a rook rates higher in the end game with its free files and ranks than in the opening when it commands only two squares in pure defense, higher when attacking a non-rook than a rook, and higher when "connected" to its teammate, i.e., on the same rank or file with no intervening obstruction.

As a basis for part of the relative values of the pieces, it is interesting to note the maximum distance of the chessmen at maximum efficiency: (below, left)

Pawn--- 3 squares (no retreat)	Pawn-----1.00
King----- 8 squares	King-----2.66
Knight---- 8 squares	Knight-----2.66
Bishop----13 squares	Bishop-----2.70
Rook-----14 squares	Rook-----4.66
Queen----27 squares	Queen0-----9.00

Since the bishops (being on opposite colors) can never actually give mutual support, they are capable of only 2/3 the work of the other pieces, bringing effective coverage down to 8.7. Revising this component of relative maximum power and reducing to unity as above (right); strangely enough, if given in whole numbers, the latter figures match those usually given as the average relative value of the pieces.
