About future rated tournaments:

The club will sponsor U. S. Chess rated tournaments regularly, both in the club, and occasional weekend events (usually one day on a Saturday). We will have such events going forward, including a Saturday event scheduled for the third Saturday of May, and likely rated tournaments in the club in months that do not have a weekend event.

Rated events do require current U.S. Chess memberships for all players (may be purchased at registration). They also require adherence to the more formal tournament rules (use chess clocks, touch move, keeping score, etc.). If you need to review those, drop by the club. We will also answer rules questions during the announcements at the tournament before the start of the first round.

In most tournaments, all players play all rounds. No one is eliminated by a loss. But if you find you must leave the event early, be sure to tell the tournament director. That way you won't be paired, so no player will have to win by forfeit, and thus not get an official rated game.

The club could use someone else to become a certified tournament director, first as another backup, and later perhaps as a head director. Please contact the club director if you are interested.

About future chess classes:

We are working on a new plan for chess instruction connected to the club. Topics could include in depth topics like middle game themes, types of chess openings, types of chess endgames, contributions to chess theory of the older chess masters, and chess traps, pitfalls and swindles (how to spot and avoid such). Suggestions about how to best provide for such instruction would be welcome! Club members who would like to teach newer players should mention that to the club director, as we get frequent requests for such instruction.

For more information:

The club will probably hold elections of new officers soon, now tentatively planned for May. For now, please direct questions to the former vice-president, Paul Shannon, countdune@netscape.net. We also maintain a large email list for chess information and announcements (usually monthly). Please let us know if you would like to be added to that list.
